

If you've completed the first two exercises, you're on your way to a successful TRA Marketplace exhibit. You have three SMART goals backed up with Written Action Plans and you created a plan to Attract Your ideal Visitors. Now it's time to give careful thought to...

CRITICAL SUCCESS FACTOR #3: MANAGE YOUR VISITOR'S EXPERIENCE

Managing the visitor experience means carefully addressing three areas: 1) your exhibit, 2) your product/service presentation/demonstration, and 3) your exhibit staff.

1. Keys to a Successful Exhibit

Think of your exhibit like a billboard on a freeway. Attendees are driving down the aisle at 70 miles per hour. The first thing your exhibit must do is grab their attention and force them to look at it. Effective ways to make your exhibit more visible include using color in your exhibit property, carpet and images, using lighting to draw attention to product displays or imagery, larger imagery that is relevant to the audience, using motion or things that blink or flash, and using technology such as flat panels, video walls and interactive touch screens.

Once they look, your exhibit must quickly and visually answer the questions of 1) what do you do?, 2) why should they care?, and 3) who are you? Next, your exhibit must be easy-to-enter, navigate and exit. Finally, your exhibit should reinforce your brand identity.

EXERCISE: Setup or look at a picture of your exhibit and assess how well it's addressing these factors. If it's weak in any of these areas, consider making changes before the show.

2. Keys to Successful Presentations and Demonstrations

CEIR research found the #1 way attendees want to engage with exhibits is through interactive presentations and demonstrations. Give very careful thought as to how you are displaying and presenting your products and services. Try making it as interactive as possible. Show them, tell them, and get them to do something to create maximum impact. Be sure to reinforce your key takeaway messages with well-placed graphics.

EXERCISE: Think through your product or service presentation with emphasis on multi-sensory interaction with visitors.

3. Keys to Successful Exhibit Staffing

Your people will make or break your success at trade shows. Be sure to have enough staffing during all open exhibit hours. If you're in a medium or larger booth, make sure it is easy for visitors to identify who your staffers are. Have multiple types of staffers, including sales, marketing, technical, customer service, and executives. Be sure everyone looks and acts like they want to be there. Stand up, smile and engage visitors on the perimeter. Quickly welcome visitors who enter your booth. Spend the first few minutes asking questions about the visitor; who they are, why they are visiting, and what they hope to accomplish. Avoid behavioral mistakes that reduce booth traffic like sitting, talking with other staffers, texting or talking on cell phones, and eating or drinking in the booth.

EXERCISE: Get your booth staff together and discuss your staffing game plan and the rules of effective exhibitorship before the show.

If you missed the New Exhibitor Web-Briefing on April 13th, the webinar replay is available on the Exhibitor Success & ROI Center web page.

Please be sure to read these articles, also located on the Exhibitor Success & ROI Center web page.

- Staffing for Success
- 9 Steps to Stand Out and Be Remembered at Your Next Show
- Improving Exhibiting Effectiveness e-book

Lastly, get ready for your E3 exhibiting effectiveness booth evaluation! Between July 9th and 10th, a highly experienced trade show expert will visit your exhibit and provide quick guidance on any improvements you can make right away to improve your effectiveness, and will also perform a 21 point evaluation. They will not need to interrupt your booth activities during this process. However, the evaluator will be taking photos of your booth, which will only be used in a confidential report you'll receive.

Shortly after the show, you will be emailed an Exhibiting Effectiveness Evaluation Report highlighting areas of effectiveness and identifying potential areas that can be improved so your company gets more value and results.

If you have any questions, please feel free to reach out to your account executive.

